5/11 Announcements

Catalyst learner privacy feature now live: Everything DiSC on Catalyst allows learners an easy way to apply the insights learned in their DiSC training to their day-to-day work lives through the Your Colleagues feature. Learners can find their colleagues and gain personalized, real-time tips for more effective interactions, making the hard work of changing behavior possible—even fun. To gain the most value from this experience, Everything DiSC recommends that learners within the same organization share their DiSC style information with their colleagues. We recognize however, that some clients and learners may not be comfortable with this level of personal information sharing.

In these instances, Catalyst now offers learners an opt-out feature. If a learner chooses not to share their DiSC style information, their colleagues will not see their DiSC style information, nor will they see their colleagues' information. Learners can choose not to share their DiSC style information by visiting the Privacy tab within the Account Settings page on Catalyst. Learners simply select "No" and save their response. Learners who choose this option can opt back in at any time.

5/11 Release Notes: What's new with Everything DiSC® on Catalyst™

Below is a summary of new updates and improvements we made.

Catalyst Platform and Learner Experience Updates

- New learner privacy feature: A new Privacy tab has been to the Account Settings page on Catalyst. Here, learners are introduced to the concept and benefits of sharing their DiSC information with their colleagues and are given the choice to make themselves private. A private learner cannot be viewed by their colleagues cannot see their information nor can they see their colleagues. Because learners gain the most value from their Catalyst experience through sharing their DiSC style information with their colleagues, we've made it easy for people who have opted out of sharing to see what sharing entails and opt back in at any time.
